Umatilla County Made Good On Pledges.

Official Statement Issued by C. S. Jackson, state director of the war savings stamp campaign in 1918, shows the total stamps sold in Umatilla county during the year was $185,151.40, which is 10.7 per cent over the county's quota of $165,180. For the state the quota was $16,414,326 and stamps sold came to $18,489,972.83, 100.4 per cent of quota.

Bills Introduced in House.

Trappers Have Plan.

E. P. Averill, of the United States Biological Survey, returned last night from a visit to his Washington territory, and from the meeting of the National Wool Growers' Association, at which he was a speaker. He visited trappers and outlined new work. Mr. Averill reports that although over half of his force of 55 trappers in Oregon and Washington suffered from influenza, and over half the force of 35 in Idaho also had the disease, not a death resulted from the epidemic.

May Get Airplane.

Because the Umatilla National Forest Reserve by reason of excellent landing facilities, is especially adapted to the use of airplanes for fire prevention, Supervisor W. W. Cryder has placed an order with the government asking that if planes come into use his territory be given one. If planes become a feature of the forest service, they will be used to investigate drought conditions and will report upon them, saving time over the old method of telephoning. This would mean no change in plans for extinguishing fires, but, according to Mr. Cryder, there is a possibility that bombs may be used for this purpose.

Fed at Station.

A sailor returning from France to Portland by way of Pendleton today met with special consideration from the Red Cross canteen committee when he confided a pitiful tale of how he was engaged to a Portland girl for two years prior to his enlistment and after a year of service with Uncle Sam the sailor received word that his fiancée was married to another man. "It was hard luck," he said, taking a generous note of sympathy. Besides the down-hearted one, 15 other soldiers and sailors were fed by the committee.

EAST END FAVORABLE TO BONDING PLAN

The people of Milton and the east end of Umatilla county are displaying considerable interest in the road bonding proposition for the county, according to C. P. Strain, secretary of the committee selected by the county court to prepare for the bond election. He found Milton people generally interested in the question and much sentiment favorable to the bonding program. The only question seemed to be, what assurance is there that the state will pay up the money if the county votes the bonds. Can the state money be depended upon.
